Foreword

The sands of time have shifted. This, the RAM-SONIAN for 1960, marks the end of another phase in our lives. As we bid good-bye to these hallowed halls that have meant so much to us in the past four years, let us pause to look back on some of the activities and organizations that have played such an important part in our lives during that time.

When we pick up this book at a future date, perhaps it will bring back pleasant memories and thus serve as a connecting link with a past abounding with pleasure and a rich heritage.

We, the graduating class of 1960, offer this yearbook which is a record of our last year at Ramseur. Its worth can only be determined by you, THE READER.

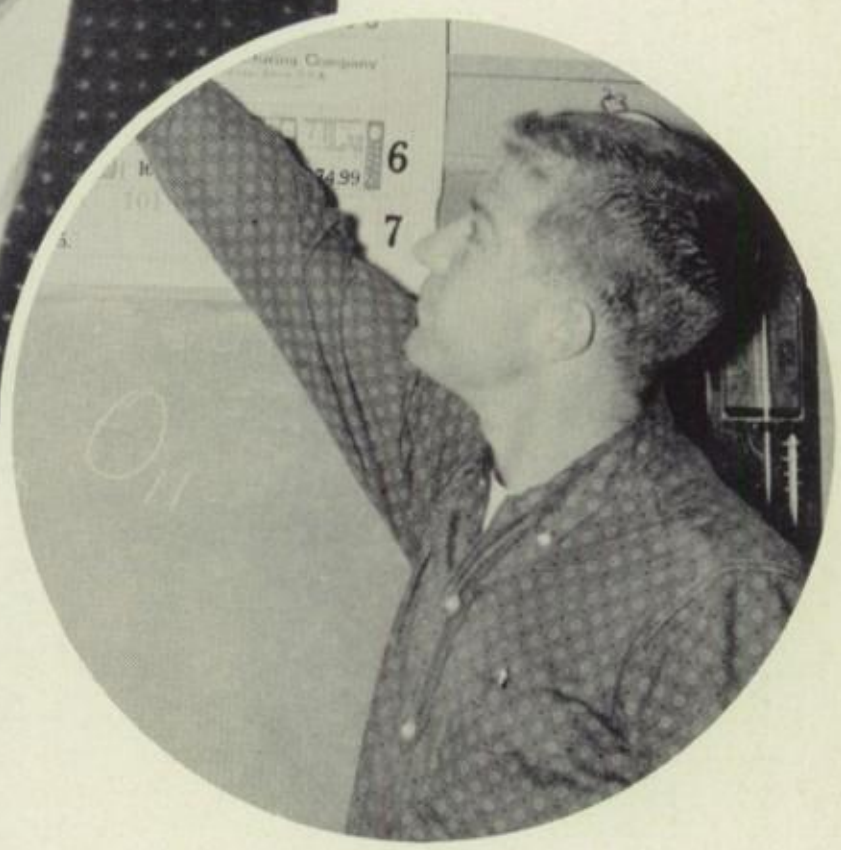
Dedication



We pay tribute to a man who has served Ramseur High School in two capacities, teacher and coach. One who as teacher leaves a memorable impression of his patient guidance and skilled instruction. One who as coach teaches that sportsmanship and honor come before victory even though victory is important.

It is with grateful appreciation and admiration that we, the Class of '60, dedicate this, our edition of the RAMSONIAN to Mr. Bobby E. Godwin.

CLASS HISTORY

The history of the Class of 1960 is so dramatic and colorful that it resembles a play. Here is a review from the files of a famous dramatic critic on the play, "The Class of 1960."

This is a play in four acts, with three brief intermissions. The play was written by the actors as they played their parts under the direction of Mr. C.A. Cox, the principal, and a band of capable assistants, the faculty of Ramseur High School. It is produced by the Board of Education with the co-operation of the taxpayers and is given by an all-star cast of forty members.

Being a mixture of comedy and tragedy, this play comes under no particular classification. The scenes take place largely in the high school building, in the classrooms, the auditorium, and the gymnasium. The settings are simple and show signs of use.

The curtain rises as the actors arrive in the halls of learning on a sunny day in the fall of 1956. Their timidity and curious mistakes furnish some bright, comical moments. There is rapidly rising action as the villain gradually puts in an appearance. He is called Study and is of alarming size and proportions. It is evident that he will interfere sadly with the enjoyment of the actors, now know as Freshmen. At the close of the act there is a tense period of suspense, a mental crisis created by Study's brother villain, Exams. But the Freshmen, by one last spur of their tired brains, triumph. The directors of this act are Miss Edith Rollins and Mr. Robert Spencer.

After an intermission of twelve weeks, the play is resumed. Act II, directed by Miss Edith Rollins and Mr. Bob Godwin, shows the same people in the same places, but they are now known as Sophomores. In this act the members of the cast seem to have gained poise, confidence, and the ability to almost completely ignore the villain, Study. Costumes and make-up are much more elaborate. Several cast members are beginning to gain recognition in sports and other activities, a fact which makes the other actors very proud.

Another twelve weeks intermission, and we stagger in for Act III. Again the same people in the same scene which make the play sound monotonous to you, but I assure you, it is not. The actors are now called Juniors and are under the direction of Mrs. Leo Rich and Mr. Mercer J. Blankenship. This is a cheerful act. Highlights are the magazine sales campaign, Class Night, and the long-awaited Junior-Senior Banquet held at the Mayfair Cafeteria in Greensboro. Also nine Juniors are tapped into the Beta Club. Despite the gaiety, however, our old enemy, Study, is still present, rarely allowing the cast far out of his sight. Many who entered the first act with enthusiasm have become weary in the struggle and have left the cast. They are missed, but the actors seem more determined to be victorious.

The third and last intermission is greatly enjoyed by everyone, perhaps because we know there is but one more act. Act IV arrives at last and is warmly received. The actors are now so experienced and at ease in their roles as students that they are hardly recognizable as the same "green" Freshmen of Act I. They are even on more friendly terms with the villain, Study, because of almost constant companionship. The entire production of this act, directed by Mrs. Guy Lane, attains a smoothness and a finish that is very pleasing. There is much action as the Seniors find themselves revolving in a world of Homecoming, new classrings, the Senior play, "Dear Diary", another Junior-Senior, the long awaited Washington trip, as well as many social and sports events. They race to meet Ram and Ramsonian deadlines.

As the act nears its close, it is evident that all is not well. Long faces indicate a realization of having to leave the favorite settings all too soon. Worried expressions register concern for the last appearance of Exams. This is the final struggle. Victory means freedom from further meetings with the enemy. The Seniors prepare well and when the fatal hour comes, emerge victorious. They have finished Study. Study, met face to face, is found to be, not an enemy, but a friend, and an invaluable ally to possess throughout life.

At last the grand finale comes! The play ends in a burst of glory, with flowers, music, and congratulations. Graduation! The happy ending! The acting experience has prepared the cast for their future lives for - "All the world's a stage, and all the men and women are merely actors on it."

CLASS POEM

The halls we love so well are silent,
The familiar halls of Ramseur High.
For the last time our voices are heard
As Graduation Day draws quickly nigh.

We fondly caress the battered old desks
But we dare not linger; our futures call.
'Tis with aching hearts we sadly remember,
Others our places will take next fall.

We are standing now at life's crossroads.
How we wish that forever we could stay!
Just to laugh and work and study
Through times of achievement, sorrow, and play.

But tomorrow ever beckons us forward.
Life has called, and time bids us go.
Heavy footsteps sadly echo our whisper
"Dear R. H.S., always we'll love you so."

CLASS SONG

Oh, we love the halls of Ramseur
That surround us here today.
And we will not forget
Though we be far, far away.
To the hallowed halls of Ramseur
Every voice will bid farewell,
And shimmer off in twilight
Like the old vesper bell.

One day a hush will fall,
The footsteps of us all
Will echo down the hall and disappear.
But as we sadly start
Our journey far apart,
A part of every heart will linger here
In the sacred halls of Ramseur,
Where we lived and learned to know
That through the years we'll see you
In the sweet afterglow.

As we close the final page of our yearbook with nostalgie memories, let us not forget who made this, our 1960 annual, possible. The senior class of Ramseur High School considers it a p l e a s u r e and an honor to have such gracious advertisers. In this space, we want to say thanks to each merchant who placed an ad in our annual this year. Without you, our advertisers, our annual would not have been possible.
